

All Together Now: Key Issues

Income Inequality – Track Record & Campaign Promises

Implemented some social programs that help to lower income inequality. Introduced the National Child Benefit, which has had a positive impact on reducing income inequality. Cut the rate for middle-income tax bracket, which reduced taxes for highest-income earners without benefiting most low- and middle-income earners, resulting in the new marginal tax rate for high-income earners having only a limited impact. Has still not tackled tax evasion by the wealthy beyond a minor investment of resources. Continued Harper-era policy of signing trade agreements that make it harder for governments to adopt measures that reduce income inequality.	Its focus on corporate and personal tax cuts alongside program and transfer decreases will increase income and wealth inequality. Has no interest in reducing income or wealth inequality. Its focus on tax credits to assist people provides little or no support for low- or middle-income earners. Platforms historically focus on corporate and personal tax cuts, which create conditions used to justify program and transfer cuts. This is a formula that increases inequality in both income and wealth.	Committed to reducing income and wealth inequality with a 1% wealth tax and a 2% tax increase for highest-income bracket to fund programs and transfers that would benefit low- and middle-income earners. Committed to reducing income and wealth inequality. Proposing a 1% wealth tax generating $70 billion over 10 years. Promised a 2% tax increase for the highest-income bracket. Announced an increase in corporate tax rates. Proposed investments in programs and transfers that would benefit lower-income earners and reduce income inequality.	Its proposal for basic income is based on the Conservative model, in that it would replace other income-support programs for low-income Canadians. Committed to establish a universal Guaranteed Livable Income, but the plan to fund it by eliminating other income-support programs for low-income Canadians will reduce impact. Supports a federal minimum wage of $15/hour. Supports an increase in corporate tax rates.